Applying textured paint to walls

Applying textured paints to walls is actually very easy and doesn't take long to do. As long as you have the right tools and materials there is no reason why this will be more difficult than painting a wall with regular paint.

What You'll Need

- NEO Natural paint
- NEO Bonding Primer
- Sheepskin Paint Roller (Sponge roller or block brush)
- Scraper
- NEO Repair Paste
- Sandpaper
- Steel brush

Step 1 – Cleaning the wall

Always start with a clean wall. Remove all dust, foreign material, fungal and algae growth with a steel brush. If you want to remove oil, wash the wall with light soapy water, but ensure the wall has dried properly before you start to paint!

Step 2 – Filling the holes

Before painting the wall with anything it is important that you spend some time repairing cracks, holes, and blemishes with NEO Repair Paste.

If you are applying the textured finish on top of existing paintwork, then you should first sand this down so that the primer can stick to the paint.

Step 3 – Wall preparation

Prime the walls using a high-quality primer. Apply one coat of NEO Bonding Liquid to cover the filler used. Only one coat of primer will normally be required.

Step 4 - Applying the paint

With a sheepskin roller apply a generous coat of NEO Natural paint and, if a more textured look is required, use a foam roller to create texture or a block brush for a Moroccan effect.

Start by working on small sections of the wall. Repeat until the whole wall is covered in the textured paint. Allow the paint to dry 4-6 hours before re-coating.

Apply a second coat in the same manner as the first.

And you are done!
